SOUTHEAST ASIA LECTURE SERIES

Fridays, noon to 1 p.m. Room 100, Campus Life Building

Ronnie Nataatmadja, Northern Illinois University
2017 PhD graduate, Political Science
“Local Elections and Public Service Provision in Indonesia: Influence in Middle Class”

Andrea Molnar, Northern Illinois University, Department of Anthropology
“State of Human Rights and Civic Education in an Active Conflict Zone in Thailand’s Deep South: Civil Society vs. Formal Education”

Mitch Hendrickson, University of Illinois at Chicago, Department of Anthropology
“Steely Places and Angkorian Spaces? Conceptualizing the Rise of the Khmer Empire (11th to 13th c. CE), Cambodia”

Iqra Anugrah, Northern Illinois University
2018 PhD candidate, Political Science
“Local Agrarian Struggles in Contemporary Indonesia”

Carmen Jacqueline Ho, University of Toronto
PhD candidate, Political Science
“Governing Global Nutrition: The Politics of Pro-Poor Policy Reform in Southeast Asia”

TBA

Lisa Niziolek
The Field Museum
“Ancient Maritime Trade Networks and the Java Sea Shipwreck”

James B. Hoesterey, Emory University, Department of Religion
“Digital Redemption: Pornography, Blasphemy and the Comeback Campaign of Aa Gym”

Bradley Simpson, University of Connecticut, Department of History
“Genocide and Justice: The Ongoing Search for Truth and Accountability for the 1965-66 Indonesian Mass Killings”

Kosal Path, City University of New York at Brooklyn, Department of Political Science
“The Origins of Vietnam’s ‘Doi Moi or Renovation’ Thinking in 1986”

Sheela Vemu, Waubonsee Community College, Department of Biology
“Microbes, ‘Borneo Mud’ and Antibiotic Resistance”

To order a brownbag Southeast Asian lunch, see www.cseas.niu.edu ($5 students, $7 for all others) and follow prompts to Lecture Series page. Questions? Email cseas@niu.edu.